Fennemore Dowling Aaron Continues Strategic Growth Leading Central Valley Law Firm Expands With Three Key Hires

FRESNO & SACRAMENTO, CA – Fennemore Dowling Aaron, a leading law firm in the American west, announced today the hiring of three new attorneys. Attorneys John Phillips and Amanveer Brah join the Fresno office of the firm, while attorney Christopher Flail is now Of Counsel at Fennemore Dowling Aaron's Sacramento office.

John Phillips is a seasoned director who works in the firm's Business Litigation practice group where he brings transactional experience to the courtroom. Phillips works on numerous commercial matters, including failed agreements and transactions, partnership disputes, eminent domain actions, breach of contract cases, and corporate break-ups.

Aman Brah is an associate attorney who works in the firm's Trusts & Estates practice group, as well as the Business & Finance group. His work focuses on estate planning and tax planning for high-net-worth individuals, as well as taxation of property transactions, federal income tax, and tax law controversy work.

"We are so proud and happy to welcome John and Aman to our thriving office," noted Fennemore Dowling Aaron's Fresno office Managing Partner, Leigh Burnside. "Both of these fine gentlemen are from the Fresno area, and their knowledge, skills and expertise are a perfect match for the expanding needs of our clients and our community."

Chris Flail is a corporate and transactional attorney working in the firm's Business & Finance practice group. Flail's work includes negotiating and drafting large scale M&A transactions, licensing and leasing agreements, acquisitions and divestitures, purchase and sales agreements, confidentiality agreements, joint ventures and dispute settlements.

“Chris is a perfect fit for our client-focused culture, and we’re thrilled to have him here at the firm,” noted Richard Aaron, Fennemore Dowling Aaron’s California Region Chair. “He’s a great communicator and a deal maker. He will be able to walk our clients through complex matters, blending outstanding legal skills with practical business knowledge and experience,” added Aaron.
