Fennemore Craig Attorney Appointed to the Sedona Historic Preservation Commission

PHOENIX, AZ – Fennemore Craig, a leading Mountain West law firm, announced Derek J. Pfaff has been appointed to the Sedona Historic Preservation Commission by the Sedona City Council.

“Service to the communities in which we live and work is an important aspect of our firm’s culture,” said Steve Good, managing partner of Fennemore Craig. “We congratulate Derek on his selection to serve on Sedona’s Historic Preservation Commission.”

Pfaff focuses his practice on acquisitions and dispositions of improved and unimproved commercial properties as well as farm and ranch properties, shopping center development, commercial leasing, and real estate finance. He handles conventional real estate lending, loan work-outs and mezzanine loan transactions and works on the real estate aspects of renewable energy projects, specifically solar and wind, including site acquisition and leasing. Pfaff earned his J.D. and B.A. from the University of Arizona.

The Sedona Historic Preservation Commission conducts hearings relative to the identification and preservation of landmarks representing distinctive elements of Sedona’s historic, archeological, and cultural heritage, to promote the use of historic landmarks for education, pleasure and welfare of the people of Sedona, to foster civic pride in the accomplishments of the past, to stabilize and improve property values of rehabilitated and protected sites, to provide incentives for restoration by owners of landmarks or historic properties, and to provide standards for restoration of landmarks and new construction within historic districts; all in accordance with the recommendations set forth in the Sedona Community Plan.
