Fennemore Craig Expands Litigation Practice

LAS VEGAS, NV – Fennemore Craig, a leading Mountain West law firm, announced Chelsie Adams has joined the firm’s litigation practice in Las Vegas.

“We are pleased to welcome Chelsie to the firm,” said Mark Hawkins, office managing partner in Fennemore Craig’s Las Vegas office. “Her experience will enhance our ability to assist our clients with a range of disputes that often arise in a business setting.”

Adams represents businesses and individuals in business disputes, which includes complex commercial litigation, construction disputes and defects, and tort actions. She earned her J.D. from Willamette University and her B.A. from Nevada State College. Prior to her career in law, she worked in upper administration at Nevada State College, and was selected to serve on the Subcommittee on Academics and Workforce Alignment, which was part of the Nevada Legislature’s Interim Study Concerning the Governance Structure of and Funding Methods for Community Colleges.

Fennemore Craig attorneys have helped develop and define laws shaping our region for more than a century. We serve clients at all levels of state, county and municipal government as well as numerous federal agencies.
