Amanveer Brah is an attorney based out of our Fresno office who works in our trusts and estates practice group. His work focuses on estate planning and tax planning for high-net-worth individuals, as well as taxation of property transactions, federal income tax, and tax controversy work.

Growing up in Fresno County, California, Aman knew that he wanted to go to law school and was inspired by his older brother who also became an attorney. Before starting law school, a fellow colleague recommended that Aman should specialize if he could, so instead of following the natural path to success he asked himself, “what do I know nothing about?!” This led him to studying tax law, which he instantly found incredibly challenging and engaging, and to this day, he thoroughly enjoys tackling complicated matters for his clients, and effectively communicating creative solutions. Aman takes great pride in collaborating with his clients and finding resolutions to the technical complexities of a field that is constantly changing and evolving.

Outside of work, Aman loves spending time with his family and friends, exploring the great outdoors, and watching a great movie – Blade Runner being one of his all-time favorites.
