Reno, Nevada

Eric Duhon is an associate in our Reno office who focuses his practice in commercial law, real estate law and business and finance law. As an up-and-coming commercial attorney, he is especially drawn to this area of law as it offers him the ability to work with clients and build something together. In this productive field, Eric is energized by the complex nature of putting together a big puzzle, and the solutions are tangible as you travel around Reno and see new projects continually added to the city's strategic growth plan.

A fifth-generation Nevadan, Eric's family has a long history with the state's law heritage. In college, Eric was an elite Division I varsity rower, and he possesses a blue belt in Brazilian jujitsu. Outside of his work as an attorney, he is an avid backpacker and world traveler — he has been around the world twice in different directions, enjoying independent travel and cultural immersion in more than 40 countries.
