Kevin Grant's practice includes mergers, acquisitions, asset and stock purchases, joint ventures, restricted stock and other incentive programs for key executive and employees. He typically represents both buyers and sellers in M&A transactions within the wholesale and retail insurance industry. Over the past two decades, he has closed more than 100 insurance industry transactions with the largest private and public insurance companies in the country. In addition to his experience in the insurance industry, Kevin has a broad range of experience in agricultural and real property transactions, business contracts, business succession agreements and general corporate law. It is his aim to strive to provide his clients with practical, real-world business solutions to meet their needs and to help his clients realize value from his services.

Kevin became a lawyer so that he could help people analyze, react to and solve business problems. As an attorney, he believes that he is in a unique position to help provide services and advice that can allow his clients to fulfill their business goals on an ongoing basis. He relishes the ability to work with supportive colleagues and assist clients with sophisticated legal and business issues. Kevin integrates his diverse and wide-ranging skills into his corporate, business and real estate practice. He likes being able to look at issues from a business practical standpoint, and help people as efficiently as he can when they have business issues. He strives to be as business friendly or business practical as he can be to help people solve their legal issues.

Away from the office, Kevin enjoys spending time with his family and staying active by participating in various community events, along with running, fitness and sports. After graduating from the University of Idaho in 2000, Kevin became a part of the Dowling Aaron family as an associate. In 2006, Kevin became a partner of the transactions and entity formation department and he currently serves on the Executive Committee.
