Renee Titus is a paralegal in our estate planning practice group, and she also maintains the firm's estate planning database. She attended Life Pacific College, earning her Associate of Arts degree.

She been in the legal field for over 38 years, beginning her journey while in high school as a file clerk in a Los Angeles law firm owned by her uncle. Renee has worn many hats over the years, including file clerk, court runner, legal secretary and paralegal. She has found each role to better prepare her for her current position as a paralegal, and to have a comprehensive understanding and appreciation for each person's contribution to the legal profession. She truly enjoys assisting and meeting with clients; hearing their stories, and being instrumental in helping them navigate the sometimes challenging process of preparing and implementing an estate plan.

A true California girl, Renee loves participating in activities that take her into the sunshine, including walking, swimming and gardening. When indoors, she spends time reading or enjoying organizational projects, since she is known as a "neat freak" who thrives on order. She also loves a good party, and regularly opens her home to friends and family. Renee and her husband own a printing and graphic design franchise which has given them the privilege of being deeply involved in the local community. Renee and her husband also enjoy trips to the coast and hanging out with their adult daughters and son-in-law who keep them young and up to date on the latest technology.
