DARIEN KEY

Darien Key is an associate attorney who works out of our Oakland office in our Land Use practice group. Darien's practice focuses on CEQA (California Environmental Quality Act), public interest law, municipal law (such as Brown Act compliance, Public Records Act, Conflicts of Interest, etc.), environmental, energy and natural resources matters, land use, and litigation.

Born and raised in Bakersfield, CA, Darien initially studied history with the intention of becoming a History professor. His love of politics, and a desire to know how the law actually works though led him to continue his education by attending law school in San Diego. Darien enjoys helping people, businesses, and local governments solve their problems by translating "legalize" into everyday language that helps clients make the necessary decisions to push projects forward. In his role, he becomes the face of the law – forming solid relationships, and having his clients' backs every step of the way in their legal matters.

Outside of work, Darien is a workout warrior who enjoys hiking, weight lifting, and rock climbing, as well as just relaxing with his two dogs and two cats. He's also a great cook inspired by the creativity offered by his epicurean adventures – ask him about his go-to lasagna dish!
