ZAKI ROBBINS

Zaki Robbins is a business, finance, and real estate attorney at Fennemore who counsels companies, investors, and emerging growth clients on complex transactions and regulatory matters. He combines broad subject-matter experience with a practical, solutions-oriented approach to help clients achieve their strategic goals.

In his corporate practice, Zaki advises on mergers and acquisitions, corporate governance, and capital raising. He structures transactions, coordinates diligence, negotiates definitive agreements, and manages closings, while counseling boards and executives on fiduciary duties, governance frameworks, and compliance. His financing experience spans debt and equity transactions for growth, recapitalizations, and investor exits.

His real estate and finance practice emphasizes mortgage markets and complex real estate transactions. He represents issuers, loan sellers, and investors in commercial mortgage-backed securitizations, as well as buyers and sellers of commercial and multifamily mortgage loans, loan participations, and other structured debt instruments. He also advises lenders, funds, and investors on the origination, acquisition, financing, and restructuring of commercial real estate assets, including mortgage and mezzanine loans, revolving credit facilities, and debtor-in-possession financings.

Zaki represents venture capital funds and startups throughout the investment lifecycle, including negotiating term sheets and investment agreements, guiding companies through seed and later-stage financings, and structuring governance frameworks that scale. He regularly advises on investor rights, secondary transactions, and exit planning.

He also advises developers, investors, and operators in the renewable energy sector on project development, finance, and regulatory matters. His work includes power purchase agreements, project finance structures, and compliance considerations affecting siting, interconnection, and project economics, from initial negotiations through closing.

His privacy practice includes designing and implementing compliance programs, risk assessments, and governance structures under state and federal regimes. He advises on aligning legal obligations with business operations, incident response, and vendor and data-sharing arrangements.

Committed to civic leadership, Zaki has participated in the Denver Metro Chamber Leadership Foundation's programs and has served with organizations including the Colorado Bar Association, the Colorado Solar and Storage Association, the Denver Preschool Program, Mullen High School, the Hampden Heights Civic Association, and Back on My Feet Denver.
