

DALE FREEMAN

Dale Freeman is a Director in Fennemore's Business & Finance practice group. He assists clients in a wide array of industries, ranging from medical devices to specialty foods, from construction infrastructure to digital media and AI tools. Dale assists his clients through every stage of their business, from their initial formation to exit (M&A and IPO). He also helps clients with financing equity and debt, licensing, and a range of commercial transactions. In his decades of practice, Dale has served as outside general counsel to an array of clients across industries, assisting them in their corporate, securities, transactional and employment matters and acting as a legal point person when issues arise relating to litigation, tax, intellectual property, and regulatory concerns.

Prior to joining Fennemore, Dale was senior counsel at Brown Gee & Wenger LLP focusing on corporate, securities and commercial transaction matters. He also spent a decade operating his own practice, Berkeley Business Law. Dale earned his law degree from Berkeley Law (formerly Boalt Hall), where he served as Managing Editor of the California Law Review. He graduated with honors from Stanford University.

An active member of the East Bay community, Dale has served on the boards of several local nonprofit youth sports and community service organizations. A lifelong East Bay resident, he enjoys exploring the local food scene and is a big supporter of Bay Area collegiate and professional sports teams (especially for the ones with his daughters on their rosters).
