

DAVID T. BARTON

David Barton is an attorney in Fennemore's Employment & Labor practice group, where his practice focuses on labor and employment law and litigation. With a strong track record of defending employers in high-stakes matters, David represents clients in cases involving wrongful discharge, sexual harassment, disability and age discrimination, and wage and hour disputes. He regularly appears before state and federal courts, as well as agencies such as the EEOC and the Arizona Civil Rights Division.

David's litigation experience spans a wide range of industries, including health care, aviation, technology, financial services, and retail. His recent work includes securing multiple defense verdicts in complex jury trials involving claims under the Family and Medical Leave Act, Title VII, Section 1981, and the Americans with Disabilities Act. He has successfully defended clients in whistleblower actions, OSHA proceedings, and unfair competition disputes involving non-compete agreements and trade secrets.

Notably, David has prevailed in several multi-plaintiff discrimination lawsuits and has defended employers in arbitration and administrative proceedings across multiple jurisdictions. He also advises clients on employment contracts, executive agreements, and employee handbooks, helping businesses navigate compliance across various states.

In addition to his work in the courtroom, David spends much of his time counseling with employers related to employee discipline and discharge matters. He has prepared and regularly updates a form policy manual that he uses to assist employers in the creation and improvement of employee policies and handbooks. He is particularly adept at guiding employers through reductions in force and layoffs and has helped executives from several companies negotiate favorable agreements during mergers and acquisitions.

Prior to joining Fennemore, David and his partner, Christine Burns, founded the boutique employment law firm, BurnsBarton, PLC, where they practiced in Phoenix for over 12 years. He also previously served with the Utah Attorney General's Office and Johnson and Hatch in Salt Lake City.

His depth of experience and practical approach make him a trusted advocate for employers facing challenging legal issues in the workplace.
