

HANNA KIM

Hanna Kim is an associate in Fennemore's Business Litigation practice, where she represents clients in complex commercial disputes with a focus on strategic, research-driven advocacy. Her background in dispute resolution informs her practical and solutions-oriented approach to litigation. During law school, she earned a CALI Award in Mediation, reflecting her skill in identifying common ground and navigating high-stakes conflicts with clarity and composure.

Hanna earned her law degree, cum laude, from the University of California Law, San Francisco (formerly UC Hastings), where she served as a teaching assistant in Legal Research and Writing, a Sack Fellow in Torts, and a member of the Moot Court Team. She gained hands-on litigation experience through her internship with the San Francisco Superior Court's Probate Division, as well as with private law firms handling a broad range of business matters.

She holds a B.A., cum laude, in Liberal Arts and Islamic Studies from Zaytuna College in Berkeley, where she graduated with distinction for her senior thesis exploring ethics and happiness in Western thought.
