

KATHLEEN B. CARR

Kathleen B. Carr is a Director in Fennemore's Intellectual Property practice group. She draws upon extensive litigation experience to strategically guide clients through a broad spectrum of complex intellectual property and commercial litigation matters.

Kathleen's practice encompasses patent, trademark, and copyright litigation. She has led trial teams in multibillion- and multimillion-dollar Hatch Waxman pharmaceutical patent litigation. She has successfully litigated patent disputes across diverse technologies—such as pharmaceuticals, biotechnology, mechanical devices, business methods, printing machines, mechanical seals, fax technology, and photocopiers—and has led inter partes review proceedings with favorable outcomes. In trademark matters, Kathleen has represented clients in industries spanning pharmaceuticals, hair restoration, and modeling agencies. She also is a registered U.S. patent attorney.

Her commercial litigation and counseling practice includes admiralty and maritime law, contract disputes, insurance coverage, antitrust, offshore wind, COVID-19 issues, real estate, architecture and engineering, and fire damage cases. She also has an enduring interest in constitutional law and federal statutory interpretation, having authored articles and amicus briefs on these subjects.

Kathleen co-authored a treatise chapter, "Litigation Management by Judges," in the nationally well-known federal court litigation treatise, Business and Commercial Litigation in Federal Court (Thompson Reuters, 2021) (co-authored with Hon. George A. O'Toole, U.S. District Court, D. Mass.).
