

Logistics

Helping Our Clients Realize Their Vision For Responsible Development In
The American West Since 1885.

Logistics is a constantly evolving industry that spans several categories from material handling, trucking, employment and land use. Logistics is a broad term that encompasses the developers of the logistics buildings, contractors and operators and each face a myriad of issues starting with obtaining land use approvals, construction and continuing throughout the operations of a logistics facility.

Fennemore's attorneys have wide experience with land use and regulatory permitting (i.e. endangered species, cultural resources and water (stormwater and water rights) through to employment and business compliance (including tariffs and trucking). We are able to assist and guide clients through all aspects of Logistics and can coordinate with all departments of local, regional, state and federal governments to address any unique matters in the states where we provide representation, including Arizona, California, Colorado and Nevada.
