

ALEXANDER R. JORDAN

Alec Jordan is an attorney with Fennemore whose practice centers on construction law, real estate, and civil litigation. Based in Denver, Colorado, Alec represents developers, general contractors, and subcontractors in complex construction matters, including construction defect claims, breach of contract disputes, payment disputes, and general liability issues. His work also includes advising clients on transactional matters and contract negotiation to help prevent disputes before they arise.

Alec brings valuable insight from his early legal experience as a law clerk for the Honorable Judge Anne Ollada in Arapahoe County Court and as a clerk for a private law firm, where he worked on contracts, employee handbooks, complaints, affidavits, and demand letters. He earned his law degree from the University of Denver Sturm College of Law, graduating with certificates in Commercial/Corporate Law and Environmental and Natural Resource Law.

With a focus on serving the construction and real estate industries in Colorado, Alec is committed to helping clients navigate litigation and resolve disputes efficiently while protecting their long-term business interests.

EDUCATION

J.D., University of Denver, Sturm College of Law, 2020

B.A., University of Colorado, 2017

AREAS OF PRACTICE

Business Litigation

Construction Law

AWARDS AND HONORS

Scholastic Excellence Award for Corporate Drafting, May 2020

PROFESSIONAL AND COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES

Colorado Bar Association

Colorado Defense Lawyers Association

Rocky Mountain Masonry Institute, Future Leader

ADMISSIONS

State of Colorado

United States District Court for the District of Colorado