

BREENA ROOS

Breena Roos is an Of Counsel attorney in Fennemore's Business Litigation practice group. With more than 20 years of experience representing clients in both federal and state courts, Breena has handled disputes involving consumer protection, intellectual property, contracts, government investigations, and class actions. She approaches complex legal challenges with a practical, business-minded perspective, aiming to deliver efficient and effective solutions tailored to her clients' goals.

Breena brings deep public-sector experience to her practice, having served at the Federal Trade Commission, where she investigated and prosecuted companies for unfair or deceptive business practices and promoted public awareness through consumer education initiatives. Breena also worked as a Managing Assistant Attorney General at the Washington State Attorney General's Office, where she litigated high-impact consumer protection cases and advanced the state's enforcement priorities. Prior to government service, Breena practiced at Perkins Coie in Seattle.

Breena earned her law degree at Boston University School of Law. She also holds a Masters of Business Administration from the University of Cambridge, where she worked with a local nonprofit organization on their fundraising operations and developed a framework for an international non-governmental organization to evaluate funding sources aimed at reducing poverty in rural Thailand and Cambodia.

Breena is an active member of her community. She volunteers with the Girl Scouts of Western Washington and serves on the Board of Directors for the Renton Rowing Center. Outside of her professional work, Breena enjoys spending time outdoors and with her daughter.
